

- b) Samples of computer programming work
- c) Samples of new media management work
- d) Samples of online work/web development work

You can submit any combination of a), b) and c) or d) if you have work in these areas but you do not need to submit in more than one area, nor are you expected to. An important part of the program is to cross train students in all three areas of design, programming and management with an emphasis on training non-programmers to program interactivity in a design environment.
