FACULTY OF ANIMATION, ARTS & DESIGN

Advanced Special Effects Makeup, Prosthetics and Props

Prepare to begin a career in the highly specialized field of advanced special effects makeup.

Meet industry demand for advanced special effects makeup artists.

Classes to prepare you for your career

You'll earn your graduate certificate through classes that involve:

- Researching styles, trends and new developments within the industry.
- Developing two-dimensional special effects concepts and work-ups of what they might look like complete.
- Using specialized products and equipment to animate, sculpt, create, cast and mold your creations.

Professors who know the business

Because classes are small, you'll receive lots of personal support from your professors who are themselves highly experienced in the field. Most are still active in special effects makeup. Through your study you'll also be introduced to the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees (IATSE), the union representing the profession.

Practical, hands-on experience

During the summer following the first two semesters, you'll participate in a field placement where you can use your newly acquired special effects makeup skills in a professional setting. This invaluable work experience and exposure to professionals in the field can be a springboard for employment.
