FACULTY OF ANIMATION, ARTS & DESIGN

Journalism – New Media

Our graduates are pioneers in journalism, media and news departments around the world. Take your place in this exciting, innovative industry.

Break into the media industry with a cutting-edge education.

Prepare for your journalism career with a graduate certificate

This graduate certificate program prepares you for a variety of journalism or media careers. You'll learn in-demand skills, from researching and interviewing to data mining and content production. At Sheridan, you'll develop a broad perspective that will prepare you to work in all news and information platforms.

Get work experience through a media internship

Once you've completed your in-class studies, you'll have a 4–6 week internship. You'll work with your professors to secure a placement in a media or news organization that suits your career goals. This work placement will give you valuable industry experience that puts you a step ahead of the competition.

Work with the latest journalism tools and technology

Sheridan's newly renovated newsroom is a fully interactive space. It merges all media platforms (radio, television, web) into one centre. You'll have access to state-of-the-art equipment and studio space, and will use a variety of camera formats to produce news stories, documentaries and other digital content.
