Subject: Faculty Union Negotiations

Sheridan | International Centre

Dear International Student:

You may have heard of the current negotiations with the Ontario Public Service Employees Union (OPSEU), the union that represents faculty at all Ontario colleges including Sheridan which are currently ongoing. An update on these negotiations is available on the Sheridan website.

While we hope that this will be resolved without disruption, we know that some students may be concerned. Labour negotiations are a normal part of Canadian business practices, and negotiations are a respectful process. As you might expect, even when there is a strike or work-stoppage in Canada, peace and respect prevail.

No matter what the outcome of the negotiations might be, Sheridan is committed to ensuring that you will have the opportunity to complete your semester. In the history of the college sector in Ontario, no student has ever lost their year due to a strike.

We will update you as any additional information becomes available. Likewise, you can watch the Sheridan website for news here.

As always, the International Centre is available to assist with any specific questions or concerns:
