Subject: Winter 2021 Program Delivery

Dear Colleagues,

Sheridan's academic teams have been working diligently over the past month to determine program delivery modes for the Winter 2021 semester. We recognize that in the context of a rapidly-evolving pandemic and continued uncertainty, decisions about program delivery modes are critical to helping our learners plan ahead.

I'm writing today to inform you that program delivery modes for Winter 2021 have now been finalized, and are being shared with our community this week. Returning students will receive an email later this afternoon confirming whether their program will be run remotely, or with some on-campus instruction. Students beginning their studies this Winter will be notified of their program delivery format in the following days.

The program modes have been posted on RegNet, and are being communicated to each academic division.

Decisions about program modes were made with our community's safety and wellbeing as our first priority, while ensuring we continue to deliver on our commitment to excellent academic quality and student success. The selected delivery modes for each format will ensure our students continue to meet their learning objectives, while safeguarding everyone's safety.

This important milestone in Sheridan's pandemic response represents the tireless work of our faculty and staff, who continue modelling the innovation, agility, and unparalleled commitment to student success that has become Sheridan's hallmark.

Thank you for your continued hard work and support.

Sincerely,

Carol Altilia
Interim Provost & Vice President, Academic
