

Academic Integrity Workshops for Faculty

The Academic Integrity Office offers specialized small-group workshops for faculty members.

These workshops include an overview of the research on cheating within post-secondary institutions and as well, provide faculty members with course design and teaching strategies designed to reduce cheating and increase learning.

The workshops also present a forum for faculty members to connect on the topic of academic integrity. Through a guided discussion, faculty members have the opportunity to examine and discuss their current practices and identify ways to better promote academic integrity within their classrooms.

Each workshop is approximately one hour in length.
